

McMahon Selected Collier County Government Supervisor of the Year

Denise McMahon, Senior Library Supervisor, was selected Collier County government's Supervisor of the Year for 2009.

Denise began her career with the county as a library clerk in 1988. Four years later, she left the county to pursue a master's degree in library science and returned in 1994 as a librarian. Over the past eight years, she has overseen the opening of two new regional libraries; managed the Marco

Island Branch along with the Headquarters Branch and is currently manager of the new South Regional Library on Lely Cultural Parkway. Due to staff shortages, Denise has also taken on the added responsibility of managing the East Naples Branch and continues to provide coaching and guidance to the new managers of the Naples Regional and Vanderbilt Libraries.

"Denise leads by example and works tirelessly to make the Collier County Library System runs efficiently and smoothly," said Library Director Marilyn Matthes. "She is an outstanding professional who has earned the respect of her colleagues through hard work, integrity and performance. There is no doubt Denise's contributions will be long-lasting and appreciated for many years to come. She has committed herself to providing exceptional customer service to the public and is truly deserving of this honor."
