OMMAC- UK REPRESENTATIVES

HIGHLIGHT OF THE MONTH:

Consumer promotions with Touchdown – following meetings to encourage working with large consumer brands we now have confirmation details on excellent opportunities with two very large consumer brands. Details are to be confirmed, the aim, however, is to have the promotions in place over the next month.

- 1. Nokia mobile phone estimated reach 600,000 customers over a multiply reach with impressions of over 1 million tour operator partner Funway Holidays.
- 2. MasterCard credit card estimated reach 2 million card holders plus on portal with 20,000 unique visitors per month tour operator partner Virgin Holidays.

Virgin Holiday - direct marketing – Smooth Guide – negotiated to be first destination listed & for tactical offer – Virgin Holidays selected rate from Naples Beach Resort – distributed to 20,000 Virgin Holidays customers. See attached PDF.

What's New – distributed to 354 UK & Ireland media

MARKET ACTIVITIES: Market Update

• The Association of British Travel Agents (ABTA) has seen a 27% growth in bookings overseas this February compared with 2009.

Travel giant TUI says that British demand has caused it to increase its package holiday capacity, whilst rival Thomas Cook has been buoyed by end of year bookings.

Non Eurozone and long-haul destinations are the focus of this growth.

• In 2009, the British took more holidays in the UK than trips abroad for the first time in over five years.

This was due to a recessionary mindset crystallized by our Universal Uncertainty trend:

✓ Fearful of losing their jobs, dissuaded by a strong Euro and enticed by promises of a

'barbecue summer' that never came, many opted to stay at home.

- ✓ For these people, travel temporarily became just another commodity like food to be down traded.
- ✓ In a sense holidaymakers were going 'own label'.

In 2010 it appears that consumers are more confident and realize that their pent up desire for travel needn't necessitate overspending. In the same report, in November 2009, some 25% of consumers stated that holidays were "still better value abroad".

• The Icelandic volcano crisis cost airlines more than $1.7 billion in lost revenue in the six days airspace across much of Europe was closed.

For a three-day period when disruption was greatest, lost revenues reached $400 million a day, according to IATA.

There was some cost savings related to the flight groundings, such as a reduced industry fuel bill $110 million a day less compared to normal.

But airlines face added costs, including from passenger care.

See below notice from ABTA relating to the care of passengers expected from tour operators.

• The aggressive capacity cuts initiated by US carriers during the oil price spike are paying off as demand continues to grow compared against 2009 figures. Increasing load factors in the first quarter of 2010 allowed airlines to increase yields over last year's performance.

However, it is important to note that the increases are much lower than the near double digit declines experienced in the first three months of 2009 and yields remain depressed compared to 2008 figures.

The five major legacy carriers (Delta, American, United, US Airways and Continental) overall reported slightly lower revenue passenger miles for domestic traffic in the first quarter of 2010. This contrasts with the increases for the major low-cost carriers, Southwest, JetBlue and AirTran (1.6%, 7.1% and 7.5% respectively), suggesting that the low-cost carriers continue to steal share in the domestic market. According to latest data from the International Passenger Survey, Britons took 14% fewer holidays over the past year. The number of holidays taken by UK residents fell from 44 million to 38 million in the 12 months to the end of February 2010.

Overall visits overseas by UK residents, including business trips and visits to see family and friends, also dropped to 57.7 million compared with 67.1 million during the previous year.

The amount Britons spent abroad dropped by 14% to £31.2 billion during the last year.

- The Centre for Economics and Business Research says the fallout of the volcanic eruption in Iceland, coupled with high oil prices, is likely to add up to a 5.2% rise in the cost of flights. And fares could go up by a further 11.5% in 2011. The CEBR report put the cost to airlines of the ash-induced northern European airspace shutdown at £1.3 billion.
- Briton's long-standing love affair with holidaying in Spain could be over, according to an online survey by holiday website www.sunshine.co.uk. Despite, Spain being one of Briton's favourite holiday destinations since the dawn of the package holidays in the 1970s, the presence of too many fellow British tourists is rapidly turning Brits off holidaying on the Costas.

Holidaymakers thought Spain no longer "foreign enough" and the number of English-themed bars in Spain is also a deterrent.

Spain and its Canary Islands are among the five destinations that have seen the least growth in bookings of late. In contrast, bookings to the US, Egypt, Greece, Turkey and Portugal have all increased.

MARKET NEWS

Swiss company M-Travel will change name and structure as of April 19, 2010. Under the name of "Hotelplan Suisse" the company launches 3 different departments: Full Service Travel Operations, Specialised Tour Operating and Travel Related & Online Services.

German tour operator TUI created a new brand called "Fernreisen". It replaces the former "Weltentdecker" and is a consequence of rising bookings for the long haul travel within the company (winter up 6%, summer started 24% up). Their clientel for long haul travel is between 29 and 59 years old, is very experienced in travelling, speaks English and combines sightseeing with beach holidays. For the future they plan to focus more on traveller from 20 to 40 and want to expand their USA offer (source: fvw).

According to research results 4.8 Million Germans will do a long haul trip in 2010 (source: fvw).

German specialist America Unlimited has recently opened up their third sales office in Berlin (the others are Hannover and Hamburg).

ADAC Reisemonitor 2010 - The wanderlust is unbroken – every  $3^{rd}$  German (34%) intends to spend his 2010 holidays in Germany – Savings are out! Germany will be the most favorite travel destination in 2010 which represents the latest survey of the ADAC (AAA) Travel Monitor 2010 where 17 million members have been interviewed. Despite the crises the Germans hold on to their travel behaviour and 2/3 of the interviewed persons noted that they will not be reducing their travel expenses for their 2010 trip. Winners of the long-haul destinations are after Africa (plus 3,8%), the United States (+3,6%) and Far East (+2,4%). With the increasing offer of the cruising portfolio, cruise trips are becoming more and more popular, especially an increase of young travelers can be seen. (source: ADAC Travel Monitor 2010)
