

Hotels, Motel, Apartments and other lodging

A public lodging establishment is any unit, group of units, dwelling; building or group of buildings within a single complex of buildings which is rented to guests or advertised as rented to guests as a transient or non-transient establishment.

A transient establishment is a public lodging establishment rented for less than 30 days or one month for transient occupancy with the intent that the guest's stay will be temporary.

Examples of transient public lodging are hotels, motels, bed and breakfast inns, rooming houses, vacation condominium, vacation houses, and apartments.

A non-transient establishment is a public lodging establishment rented for at least 30 days or one month for non-transient occupancy with the intent that the residence will be the guest's sole residence.

Examples of non-transient public lodging establishments are apartments or townhouses with more than four units.

These items are offered as examples of lodging that need a DBPR license and lodging that does not need a DBPR License. The list is not all inclusive.

If you have specific questions, please contact the department at 850.487.1395 or review the rules for the business type at www.myfloridalicense.com. You should also check with your county or city to learn whether a local business tax receipt is required.
